Wildlife-Friendly Online Trade:

Standardized Policy Framework for e-Commerce and Social Media Companies v1.0 August 12, 2016

Background:

The trade in illegal wildlife and their products has reached crisis proportions. Demand for the rare and exotic has fueled an international poaching and trafficking surge that is threatening the survival of the world's most iconic species and wild places. With increased global access to technology and connectivity along supply chain routes, the internet has unintentionally become a thriving platform for buyers and sellers to trade illegal wildlife products. Tech companies can be a part of the solution to this crisis by dissuading and preventing illegal buying choices.

An efficient and impactful first step towards removing illegal wildlife products online is the adoption of a standardized, industry-wide policy framework on online wildlife trade. This comprehensive policy simplifies shopping guidelines for consumers, helps educate users about product legality and eliminates the loopholes that make it easy for criminals to traffic wildlife online. Most importantly, by adhering to this framework, e-commerce and social media companies can help create a unified, global front to stop wildlife crime.

Organizations that Endorse this Policy:

Online companies have endorsed this policy in collaboration with World Wildlife Fund (WWF), TRAFFIC and the International Fund for Animal Welfare (IFAW) to demonstrate their commitment to conserving global wildlife populations that are threatened with poaching and illegal trade. These companies are working together through a coalition approach to protect wildlife. Please consider adopting this standard policy approach within your own organization to help us all block wildlife trafficking online.

Standardized Online Wildlife Trade Policy for E-Commerce and Social Media Companies:

The following text serves as a standard template that can be adapted in the format that works best for each company's policy framework and will also be hosted on WWF's website. For purposes of this document, "species of concern" refers to those that have been identified by conservation organizations as threatened with extinction resulting from illegal trade, overexploitation, habitat loss and other factors. A list of these species can be found in the supplemental annex document.

Prohibited Wildlife and Wildlife Products

- a. Any wild live animal or plant or their products that were sourced illegally or are being traded in contravention of any law. This policy does not cover domestic or farm animals such as cats, dogs and chickens.
- b. The trade in and promotion of wildlife and wildlife products from species of concern is prohibited.
 - These species include those regulated through their listing in Appendix I of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES), which prohibits commercial international trade in wild sourced animals and plants as well as those species identified by conservation organizations as being threatened with extinction resulting from illegal trade, overexploitation, habitat loss and other factors. A full list of these species is included below.
- c. Wildlife that is protected by national law from commercial trade is prohibited.
 - For example in the United States the Endangered Species Act, Lacey Act, Marine Mammal Protection Act and Migratory Bird Treaty Act, in Europe the European Union Wildlife Trade Regulations and in China the Wild Animal Protection Law.
